in day-to-day operations of tribal court systems. NIJC has developed a tribal juvenile justice code, tribal child/family protection code and model codes in other areas. Contact NIJC for further information concerning model codes or code drafting and revision services.

COURT EVALUATION SERVICES

To improve the quality of judicial systems, tribal court systems should be reviewed periodically to determine the strengths and weaknesses of court operations and procedures. NIJC can conduct a comprehensive evaluation of the entire court system or evaluate specific areas of concern. NIJC staff will analyze your court system on-site and brief your staff on our findings. Following the site visit, NIJC will submit a detailed report of findings, including short- and long-term recommendations to improve your court system.

RESOURCE SERVICES

NIJC possesses an extensive library of tribal court, tribal government and tribal social services materials available at a cost to service providers in Indian Country. NIJC can also provide tribal governments with specialized consulting services in the areas of legal education, technical assistance and training. NIJC does not provide legal representation.
